Abortion Not a Means of Population Control

I am writing this letter to express my anger and concern about statements made in the article "Why abortion is not safe, legal, and funded," MIT's Student newspaper (February 2). The article attacks the right to have an abortion by portraying a hypothetical scenario in which doctors refuse to perform an abortion because the patient is an illegal immigrant. This is not an acceptable way to present the issue of abortion and demonstrates a lack of respect for the lives and rights of those who seek abortion.

The article also makes false claims about the safety and legality of abortion. It states that abortion is not a safe procedure and that doctors who perform abortions are not acting ethically. These statements are simply not true. Abortion is a medical procedure that is safe when performed by trained and skilled practitioners.

Furthermore, the article suggests that doctors are not acting in the best interest of their patients when they perform abortions. This is a total mischaracterization of the medical profession. Doctors who perform abortions are committed to providing their patients with the best care possible.

I urge you to publish this letter in order to correct the misinformation presented in the article and to underscore the importance of access to safe and legal abortion.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
