status as a harassment contact "is not even in their job description — it's really kind of crazy when you think about it," Herndon said.

The resolution cites a lack of centralization as the third problem. There is "no systematic record-keeping of sexual harassment complaints.," Herndon said.

She also noted that the administration did not adopt. Herndon said the GSC recommended that this policy or a similar one be adopted. The ad hoc group was instrumental in the GSC's work, she said.

Some women at MIT have also written an underground guide to sexual harassment. The GSC is planning to publish this guide and make it available free to graduate students.

Herndon said, "The reason women really care about this issue is we want to be treated like equals — it doesn't have anything to do with anger towards men."
