Shally Bansal (UAP):
The Undergraduate Association President will face several important issues in the coming year. These issues are vital to Student Life, Residence and Safety. Although these issues are an essential part of the responsibilities of the President, the primary responsibility of the UAP is to represent the student population of MIT. This should not be forgotten. Students know what they would like to see change. The UAP must effectively and accurately represent these student opinions to the administration and faculty. As UAP, I would enthusiastically undertake the responsibility of the office and strive to make it a truly representative office.

Dave Kessler (UA VP):
The duties of a quality UA Vice-President are to smoothly and effectively coordinate the Office of the President, to expedite the execution of UA policy, to represent the UA to faculty, administration, and community, and to assist in leading the UA forward. As a UAVP, I would pursue these goals during my term of office.

Last year, about 3000 eligible voters didn't vote. That many people can't all be wrong. Vote early, because we don't care either. Vote for Rinehart/Brown.

Barbara Sigmund

For the past four years, we have all been working towards a common goal: to graduate from MIT. Now that we are moving on, each of us has a new, unique goal, and as our lives take different paths, so too will our responsibilities. As UA President, I will work with the UA House and the Election Commission to ensure that every student has equal access to popular course syllabi. We will revamp the UA Food Service Committee to not only maintain equal access to popular course syllabi, but to also provide services to our students.
