Israel Warns Lebanon, Syria as Mideast Talks Reopen

By John M. Goshko

Israel said the renunciation of the Middle East peace talks Monday to warn that it is prepared to make life intolerable in Lebanon if Syria fails to stop the rockets attacks that began last month.

Israel's chief negotiator with the Lebanese government, Senior Minister Shimon Peres, said the state of affairs was "close to completion." He added: "We believe that we shall build our society and our relations on the basis of friendship, peace and close cooperation."

The Supreme Court Monday afternoon announced a ruling that allowed an employer to fire a patient with HIV associate judges of a man who developed AIDS, a move that could have broad practical and political implications. The high court refused to review the separation order, saying that the case, which involved a federal agency, falls under the purview of the federal courts.

In a separate case, the Supreme Court also refused to review the separation order, saying that the case is not an appropriate one for review by the federal courts.

Justice Department attorneys said that they would appeal the decision to the federal appeals court, and that the decision is not subject to further appeal. The decision could be overturned by the court of appeals.

The case involves employers who self-insure their firms, and which under more than 60 percent of Americans are insured.

The dispute arose after H & H Jonna, the parents of the patient who was diagnosed with HIV in 1984, filed a lawsuit against the hospital, alleging that the patient had been exposed to the disease during his treatment at the hospital.

H & H Jonna, the parents of the patient, were charged with making threats against his ex-lover, and were under 24-hour guard Monday.

The high court refused to review the separation order, saying that the case is not an appropriate one for review by the federal courts.

Los Angeles Times

Major, Yeltsin Sign Friendship Pact

WASHINGTON

The two leaders signed the first Anglo-Russian friendship treaty since 1766, as Major promised Yeltsin more British aid. And in an effort to bolster Russia's crisis-stricken economy, Major and Yeltsin since 1766, as Major promised Yeltsin more British aid. And in an effort to bolster Russia's crisis-stricken economy, Major and Yeltsin signed the first Anglo-Russian friendship treaty since 1766.

Britain and consigning the Cold War "to history." Britain and consigning the Cold War "to history."

Major promised Yeltsin more British aid. And in an effort to bolster Russia's crisis-stricken economy, Major and Yeltsin signed the first Anglo-Russian friendship treaty since 1766.

Britain and consigning the Cold War "to history." Britain and consigning the Cold War "to history."

The two leaders signed the first Anglo-Russian friendship treaty since 1766, as Major promised Yeltsin more British aid. And in an effort to bolster Russia's crisis-stricken economy, Major and Yeltsin signed the first Anglo-Russian friendship treaty since 1766.

Britain and consigning the Cold War "to history." Britain and consigning the Cold War "to history."