Cersei (a local gospel choir), “Big Mike” Welch (a 3-year-old local blues guitar prodigy), and the headlining Luther “Guitar J.” Johnson. Joining Luther were Son Seals and Eddy Clearwater, both on lead guitar. All the groups were backed up by Luther’s band. The House really began to swing when Luther, Son, Eddy and “Big Mike” held a four-way lead guitar jam on stage. The performances drew from several blues styles.

Above all else, the House is striving to bring the blues to Cambridge. Every Sunday, there will be a non-denominational gospel hour followed by a traditional Southern lunch. The House of Blues is also working to bring blues to the young through a program called “Blues in Schools.” Whether you are a die-hard blues fan or have never experienced the blues, we recommend a visit or two to the House of Blues, for in the words of Willie Dixon, “the blues are the roots, and the other music are the fruits.”
