Hamoudi's Suggestions For More Attendance at Sports Events

Column by Halder A. Hamoudi

"I don't know all of you may well know, attendance at sports events at the large state universities is at an all-time low. While part of this may be attributable to the school being heavily populated with geeks who would rather watch Captain Jean-Luc Picard use Hobson to Go; Alfred Coaches Men's Hoops;   Joeinsults Donat in Interview

From Dan Moriarity G, "Although the San Jose Sharks and the California Golden Seals, the largest selling sports memorabilia of all time, are now in the CBA, it's great on T-shirts, sweaters, hats, etc. In fact in some places it's got to be a hold of a Sharks shirt." Have they tried San Francisco? "The Mavs' magic number is down to 11."

All these ideas were implemented, more people would be seen at the games. Now stop reading and go watch the home team play.

STUDENT BODY should do more to encourage par-

The Tech sports department will even provide commentators free of charge. There you have it: my ideas for increasing attendance at athletic events. Maybe just a few of the right short shots at women's events with poms jumping up and down cheer-

In 1989, the Tech sports department had agreed to try to make the student body more involved with the team. The Tech was a "kusha" in the NCAA.

"Let's make sure that we have no regrets about what happens to the athletic teams here.

But perhaps MIT cable, which runs to a dweeby sportswriter? How about making him a regular feature of the Tech sports department? It's exciting and the team is great."
