We begin our column with greetings and congratulations to the MIT athletics alumni who will be on campus this weekend. Alex Virgilio '92 and Mike Dudley '92, both from Boston College; Will Scruggs '92, soccer; and Steve Hao '92 and Mike Rechtin '99, swimming.

With the NFL Draft coming up this Sunday, we present a "needs" list for the top five drafting teams as well as our own predraft analysis:

1. New England: Quarterback, offensive tackle, wide receiver, logo, etc. You name it the Patsies need it.
2. San Francisco: Offensive line, wide receiver, logo, etc. You name it the Patsies need it.
3. Carolina: Defensive end, tight end, safety, logo, etc. You name it the Patsies need it.
4. Jacksonville: Quarterback, defensive end, wide receiver, logo, etc. You name it the Patsies need it.
5. Cincinnati: Wide Receiver, defensive tackle, logo, etc. You name it the Patsies need it.

Lacrosse; Nathan Cultice '92, baseball; and Stevesteen '91, rugby; Ken Chay '91, Antaramian '92 and John Spring Will Scruggs '92 soccer; Vic

If you were at the helm of the Patsies, we would ask you to consider drafting these players:

- Mark Brunell, quarterback
- Deion Sanders, wide receiver
- Aeneas Williams, defensive back
- Kevin Greene, defensive end
- DropDownList: All the players on the list.

If you were to draft these players, you would have the best team in the NFL this year.

Despite losing all three matches at last weekend’s water polo tournament at MIT, the water polo team showed great improvement from earlier this season. The team lost 17-4 to Wesleyan College, 8-6 to the University of Pennsylvania, and 12-6 to Harvard University. However, the team did show that it has the potential to be a factor in the future.

The team lost to Wesleyan College, but it played a strong game in goal, facing 33 shots and making 23 saves. Rachel Morris '92, goalie, played a strong game and was a key factor in the loss.

The team also lost to the University of Pennsylvania, but it played a strong game in goal, facing 31 shots and making 27 saves. Rachel Morris '92, goalie, played a strong game and was a key factor in the loss.

The team lost to Harvard University, but it played a strong game in goal, facing 27 shots and making 26 saves. Rachel Morris '92, goalie, played a strong game and was a key factor in the loss.

The team did show some improvement from earlier in the season. The team played well in the second half of the games, and it showed that it has the potential to be a factor in the future.
