By Deena Dinseley

Although seats were available, with the crowd on the floor was the place to be Friday night. They Might Be Giants and Tribe rocked Johnson Athletic Center. The concert, sponsored by the Student Center Committee was the main attraction during the annual Spring Weekend. The stage was set for the concert with two sets of instruments, one set for each of the two participating bands. Above the instruments were three posters, pictures of mouths speaking, printed with the words “Fidelity, Melody, and Quantity.” While the audience eagerly awaited the bands’ arrival, seventeen music players...