President Clinton, seeking to recapture the focus of his presidency after a May 17 trip to “back to basics” by concentrating on the drug war, is preparing to get out more into the country and limiting what he personally handles, all in a rush to correct a situation that was announced Thursday.

Right after his trip, House officials and other Democrats this week suggest that Clinton is preparing to unveil a new plan, shaping up the broad outline of his economic and foreign policy. But there is emphasis on “invest,” “faster taxation,” and health care overhaul to bring back into the public mind the positive images of Clinton that broadened during last November and that were again in view when the week he announced his “back to basics” by concentrating on the drug war, is preparing to get out more into the country and limiting what he personally handles, all in a rush to correct a situation that was announced Thursday.

Right after his trip, House officials and other Democrats this week suggest that Clinton is preparing to unveil a new plan, shaping up the broad outline of his economic and foreign policy. But there is emphasis on “invest,” “faster taxation,” and health care overhaul to bring back into the public mind the positive images of Clinton that broadened during last November and that were again in view when the week he announced his “back to basics” by concentrating on the drug war, is preparing to get out more into the country and limiting what he personally handles, all in a rush to correct a situation that was announced Thursday.

Right after his trip, House officials and other Democrats this week suggest that Clinton is preparing to unveil a new plan, shaping up the broad outline of his economic and foreign policy. But there is emphasis on “invest,” “faster taxation,” and health care overhaul to bring back into the public mind the positive images of Clinton that broadened during last November and that were again in view when the week he announced his “back to basics” by concentrating on the drug war, is preparing to get out more into the country and limiting what he personally handles, all in a rush to correct a situation that was announced Thursday.

Right after his trip, House officials and other Democrats this week suggest that Clinton is preparing to unveil a new plan, shaping up the broad outline of his economic and foreign policy. But there is emphasis on “invest,” “faster taxation,” and health care overhaul to bring back into the public mind the positive images of Clinton that broadened during last November and that were again in view when the week he announced his “back to basics” by concentrating on the drug war, is preparing to get out more into the country and limiting what he personally handles, all in a rush to correct a situation that was announced Thursday.

Right after his trip, House officials and other Democrats this week suggest that Clinton is preparing to unveil a new plan, shaping up the broad outline of his economic and foreign policy. But there is emphasis on “invest,” “faster taxation,” and health care overhaul to bring back into the public mind the positive images of Clinton that broadened during last November and that were again in view when the week he announced his “back to basics” by concentrating on the drug war, is preparing to get out more into the country and limiting what he personally handles, all in a rush to correct a situation that was announced Thursday.

Right after his trip, House officials and other Democrats this week suggest that Clinton is preparing to unveil a new plan, shaping up the broad outline of his economic and foreign policy. But there is emphasis on “invest,” “faster taxation,” and health care overhaul to bring back into the public mind the positive images of Clinton that broadened during last November and that were again in view when the week he announced his “back to basics” by concentrating on the drug war, is preparing to get out more into the country and limiting what he personally handles, all in a rush to correct a situation that was announced Thursday.