Enron Gas Services (EGS) is one of the largest traders of natural gas in the United States, a market maker in the OTC energy commodity derivative market and a leader in providing innovative financial services to the independent energy sector. But don’t just take our word for it, this is what others are saying about our company:

Business Week, March 8, 1993, “Enron’s gas-service unit has become a leader in using innovative financial instruments to sell gas.”

Financial Times, June 14, 1993, “Its gas services division has built up a specialty in designing tailor-made long-term supply contracts for customers using sophisticated hedging and financing techniques.”

Goldman Sachs & Co., July 7, 1993, “Opportunities at Gas Services (EGS) appear to be even more substantial than our earlier optimistic forecasts.”

We are looking for talented individuals to help us continue growing our business. To learn more about Enron, come to our corporate presentation. We look forward to meeting with you.

You’ve been in Cambridge for six months and you still haven’t eaten at the S&S?

You’d probably be embarrassed to know we’re just around the corner in Inman Square. We’ve been there since 1919—delighting smart diners with everything from New York style deli sandwiches and buffalo-sized Buffalo Wings to Baby Back Ribs and Swordfish Dijon. Food and drink from around the world served in portions so generous, the Boston Globe called them “Humongous.” All at very affordable prices. So why not come to the S&S and take in a few courses. And learn what great dining is all about.
