Season Ends with Nominations to Conference Teams

Blau, Mich., was named the NEW 8 Player of the Year and was an all-conference selection along with senior Cohen Kaiser of Bernweld, Ws. Cindy Gregory, in her second season at MIT, was named NEW 8 Coach of the Year and was also honored as New England Women's Volleyball Association (NEWVA) Coach of the Year. Additionally, Alexander was named the most valuable player of the ECAC Tournament and was a first team All-New England selection by NEWVA. Kaiser was an honorable mention NEWVA selection and participated in the NEWVA Senior Classic. Teammate Mari Katada of Rima City, Japan, also competed in the Senior Classic.

Football

The Eastern Collegiate Football Conference has also recently selected its all-star teams. Offensively, the most prominent selection was linebacker Andy Carnell, a junior from Cherry Hill, N.J., and tackle Chris Yarney. Yarney is a freshman from Las Vegas, Nev.

NEW 8 All-conference Teams

The end of the fall sports seasons brings the naming of many NEW 8 all-conference teams. MIT is prominently represented by athletes on the NEW 8 teams. In soccer, forward Becky Hill, a junior from Grand Blanc, Mich., was an ALL-NEW 8 selection. Junior Carol Matsuzaki of Los Angeles, was named to the tennis team in the #3 singles position, and the doubles team of senior Nicole Mitchell and first year student Lily Kuo were doubles picks. Mitchell is from Seattle, Wash., and Kuo is a Pepper Pike, Ohio, native.

Men's Cross Country

The MIT men's cross country team has moved up to the 19th ranking in Division III nationally. Junior Jesse Darby has qualified for the NCAA Division III Championships by virtue of his 8th place finish in last weekend's NCAA qualifying meet at University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth. Darby, a native of St. Paul, MN, ran the 5.1 mile course in 24:49.

Wrestling

Three MIT wrestlers advanced to the finals of the Roger Williams College Hawk Invitational last weekend. Junior Chandler Harben in the 190-pound class from Bedford, N.J., and senior Jeff Breedlove of Sioux City, Iowa, at 177 pounds each lost by fall to a 1993 All-America in the tournament. Drew Rideout, a junior from Wellesley Hills, Mass., lost a heart-breaking match by one point in the first 10 seconds in the 125-pound class.

Men's Tennis

Mid-year men's rankings have been released by the Intercollegiate Tennis Association on both the national and regional levels. MIT is currently ranked ninth in the East Region and 25th nationally as a team. The Engineer's top singles player, Jay Muelloher, a senior from Cambridge, has earned a 29th ranking nationally and is the eighth ranked player in the East. Muelloher and doubles partner Nick Tazi, a senior from Okemos, Mich., have compiled the number three ranking in the East and are rated ninth nationally.

Crew

MIT Director of Crew crew Schmell has recently been honored by Community Rowing, Inc. with the Outstanding Volunteer award in recognition of his leadership of the MIT program and his contributions to community rowing.
