 Donate Your Used Brain

The Brain Trust is a group of scientists and psychologists who are interested in research on the human brain. They have a particular interest in studies that explore the relationship between the brain and behavior. They are looking for volunteers to help them learn more about the brain and how it functions.

There are a variety of ways to contribute to this research. You can donate your own brain, or you can donate the brains of deceased people who have given permission for their brains to be used for research. The brains are then studied using advanced techniques such as MRI and PET scans.

Brain donation is a way to support scientific research and help advance our understanding of the brain. If you are interested in donating your brain or the brains of others, please contact the Brain Trust at 617-721-1643.
