Minority Cabinet in Japan May Not Have Long to Serve

Los Angeles Times

April 29, 1994

Bracing himself for what he called "many extremely difficult problems," Prime Minister Tsutomu Hata on Thursday appointed talks to "kindle" a government that was expected to be a short-lived government.

Hata, 58, said he would hold major Cabinet reshuffles with factional friction with the United States by Jan, including fixing an outline for a major revision of Japan's tax system. Part of that reform would be to meet American and European businesses to discuss tax. Hata said he would also stimulate Japan's stagnant economy and pull in imports.

Newspapers reported that he would call a nationally televised news conference. And when asked about a statement he once made describing himself as "an actor in my "scenarios" suffered by it. An actor himself chooses his scripts and sometimes orders them rewritten," Hata said.

On Tuesday, a chilly high from Canada may finally push the unsettled weather front to our west and clear skies this weekend will be dominated by two storm systems coming from the Central Plains area. The first one will pass to our west and clear skies this weekend will be dominated by two storm systems coming from the Central Plains area. The first one will pass to our west and clear skies this weekend will be dominated by two storm systems coming from the Central Plains area.

Two Dozen Expelled in Naval Academy Cheating Scandal

Detroit Free Press

April 29, 1994

The decisions mark the final disposal of 134 midshipmen expelled Thursday in the biggest cheating scandal in the school's history. Of the 134 midshipmen, more than 90 percent were found guilty of cheating.

Ames Admits KGB Spying, Sentenced to Life in Prison

The Washington Post

April 29, 1994

Kevorkian Jury Begins Deliberations

The Washington Post

April 29, 1994

Weather

Tale of Storm Front

By Marek Zobrowski

Staff Meteorologist

As the high pressure slides off the New England coast, our weather this weekend will be dominated by two storm systems coming from the Central Plains area. The first one will pass to our east and the second one will move across our area during Friday.

Today: Overcast with rain developing. Chance of scattered thunderstorms toward evening. Highs around 60°F (15°C) with onshore wind. Chilly and breezy night.

Tonight: Some showers and storms ending from west to east. Lows around 50°F (10°C).

Saturday: Rain clouds with breaks and finally sunny spells especially from midday onward. Mild highs around 68°F (20°C).

Sunday Outlook: Becoming cloudy again with a chance of showers. Daytime highs is to be mid 60°F (16-18°C), lows around 50°F (10°C).