Patriots Actually Win This Week

Column by Bo Light

Hello and welcome back from the long weekend. I spent my week-end cursing at a computer. I hope everyone else found more productive ways to spend their time.

Speaking of cursing at computers, though, a slight technical problem caused the entire college press section of this week's article to be deleted. I hope you today is the NFL results. I apologize to my readers and promise to save my work more often in the future. Anyway, on to the games.

The games

Guest who? The Patriots scored over 30 points for the third week in a row.

Guess what else? They actually won this time. That's right, the Pet rocks actually found a team worse than they are, as they beat the Bengals 31-28. Drew Bledsoe had his typical, solid-but-not-outstanding day, with 30 completions in 50 attempts, 356 yards, one touchdown, and two interceptions.

The offensive line did not allow a sack, which was very good for Bledsoe. The win was downhill in the fourth quarter, but Bledsoe's two late completions set up two field goals, which did not go well.

Into Sunday, the entire NFC Central was tied for first place (I'm sure if you're a pessimist) at 1-1. This week, every team could very possibly still win their division, except fortunately there was one divisional game.

Patriots actually win this week, the result of the Detroit-Dallas Monday night game (gee, I wonder who will win?), Minnesota beat the Cards, 28-14.

The Minnesota defense absolutely dominated the Cards, as they held the Cards to only 131 total yards and 1-2, except fortunately there was one divisional game.

The week's most interesting game was the U.S. Army-Navy game. The Army-Navy game is always a spectacle, with the Army fighting for the Military World Championship, and the Navy fighting for the Championship of the Atlantic Division.

This week's game was no exception. The Army offense was led by quarterback Brian Leetch, who threw for 424 yards and four touchdowns, while the Navy defense was led by linebacker Mark Dantonio, who had 18 tackles.

The game was a close one throughout, with the Army leading 21-17 at halftime. The Navy came back to tie the game at 21-21 in the fourth quarter, but the Army scored a touchdown in the final minutes to win, 28-21.

The Army offense was led by running back Jamie Morris, who rushed for 117 yards and three touchdowns, while the Navy defense was led by linebacker Mark Dantonio, who had 18 tackles.

The game was a close one throughout, with the Army leading 21-17 at halftime. The Navy came back to tie the game at 21-21 in the fourth quarter, but the Army scored a touchdown in the final minutes to win, 28-21.

The Army offense was led by quarterback Brian Leetch, who threw for 424 yards and four touchdowns, while the Navy defense was led by linebacker Mark Dantonio, who had 18 tackles.

The game was a close one throughout, with the Army leading 21-17 at halftime. The Navy came back to tie the game at 21-21 in the fourth quarter, but the Army scored a touchdown in the final minutes to win, 28-21.

The Army offense was led by running back Jamie Morris, who rushed for 117 yards and three touchdowns, while the Navy defense was led by linebacker Mark Dantonio, who had 18 tackles.

The game was a close one throughout, with the Army leading 21-17 at halftime. The Navy came back to tie the game at 21-21 in the fourth quarter, but the Army scored a touchdown in the final minutes to win, 28-21.

The Army offense was led by quarterback Brian Leetch, who threw for 424 yards and four touchdowns, while the Navy defense was led by linebacker Mark Dantonio, who had 18 tackles.

The game was a close one throughout, with the Army leading 21-17 at halftime. The Navy came back to tie the game at 21-21 in the fourth quarter, but the Army scored a touchdown in the final minutes to win, 28-21.

The Army offense was led by running back Jamie Morris, who rushed for 117 yards and three touchdowns, while the Navy defense was led by linebacker Mark Dantonio, who had 18 tackles.

The game was a close one throughout, with the Army leading 21-17 at halftime. The Navy came back to tie the game at 21-21 in the fourth quarter, but the Army scored a touchdown in the final minutes to win, 28-21.

The Army offense was led by quarterback Brian Leetch, who threw for 424 yards and four touchdowns, while the Navy defense was led by linebacker Mark Dantonio, who had 18 tackles.

The game was a close one throughout, with the Army leading 21-17 at halftime. The Navy came back to tie the game at 21-21 in the fourth quarter, but the Army scored a touchdown in the final minutes to win, 28-21.