Four Fire Attempts Prompt High Security
A Boston-Conner executive committee meeting was called Thursday night to discuss the events of the previous two mornings. LeVay did.

"We had reps from the Safety Office, house security, and Campus Police to discuss what was known," LeVay did.

"They're being extra more after each other, no attempts have been reported since.

Campus Police has also requested that residents lock doors that open into hallways and that residents immediately report any suspicious persons or actions, Driscoll said. Floor chairs have sent these suggestions to residents via electronic mail.

"People are a little more concerned, but not terrified," Davila said.
