At Cornell in the engineering department, two important changes of policy are to be inaugurated. One is to do away with final examinations, thereby gaining about ten days more time for term work. The other is an arrangement by which all professors shall have alternate periods of practical work and teaching. This latter is a change of sweeping nature if, as is reported, it is to be applied to all professors old and young.
