COLLEGE NOTES.

At the University of California athletes are to receive credit toward graduation for their work on the gridiron, diamond and track.

Princeton students have organized a German club, on lines similar to the well-known Cercle Francais at Harvard. German magazines are subscribed to and each year a German play is presented.

The students of Columbia University want football, as was shown by their action in requesting the committee of student organizations to rescind its recent vote against the sport.

After a nine days' strike, the students at the Pennsylvania State College, resumed class work last Wednesday. The trouble arose over the right of students to take their "cuts" at any time, and was finally settled by both the faculty and students making concessions.

The Sophomores of Boston University robbed the freshman play of scenery, curtains and fittings. The scheduled time for the play was the afternoon of December 8 but this is not unlikely to cause a postponement.

The Yale News has come out against class-room cribbing in a strong editorial. Some time ago at Yale, a vote of the student body was taken upon the question of adopting the honor system, and the vote was unfavorable, the ground being the dislike of pledging to report other men seen cribbing. The honor system was tried at Cornell but was abandoned. Princeton has had it for several years, and still has it.
