Majestic Theatre.

The host of New England playgoers who so enjoyed the footlight presentation of the Biblical story of David in "The Shepherd King," are now to have a fresh treat in a massive production of "Mizpah" at the Majestic Theatre this evening. This play has been written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox and is founded upon the wonderful book of Esther.
This famous and immortal Scriptural love romance of the young Jewish maiden, Esther, and the great Persian king, Ahasuerus, which has charmed generation upon generation since it was first set down in sacred narrative by the old Jewish chronicler, has been retold in footlight fashion by Mrs. Wilcox, in a style to emphasize its dramatic intensity. Its ten scenes set forth the glory of that ancient Empire, the King's Palace at Shusan, Queen Vashti's Boudoir, the Grand Reception Hall of Ahasueras, and other equally magnificent tableaux.

The cast is headed by two actors who are particular favorites with New England playgoers—J. H.
Gilmour of Castle Square fame as the Persian King, Ahasuerus, and Adele Block, that young Boston actress, whose pronounced type of Semitic beauty should well befit the lovely Jewish maiden, Esther.
