Wednesday, April 10, 1907.

In our last issue we chronicled the abandonment of the Saturday night Kommers. Notwithstanding the untiring efforts of End of Bursar Rand and the Kommers, attractions offered in the shape of such prominent men as Mr. Moorfield Story and Mr. Louis Frothingham as speakers, the attempt to popularize this form of entertainment has been given up by its promoters as unsuccessful.

One can pardon those who have been instrumental in establishing this custom for feeling disgusted and disheartened at the lack of support with which their best efforts have been met. Nothing has been left undone which could in any way have contributed to the success of these meetings, and their abandonment has not been in any way due to poor management or lack of interest to induce men to attend. It is to our minds simply another proof of the lack of college life and spirit which is so noticeable at the Institute. It is the visible expression of the desire of a number of Tech men to escape from their Institute relations as soon as their work is completed, and to seek their pastimes and amusements in spheres as far removed from their scenes of work as may be.

COMMUNICATION.

The Editors do not hold themselves responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TECH:

There is a certain practice at Tech which does not seem well understood. Men here are apt to grind too hard and stay indoors too much. They ought to get out in the open air at least once a week. The weekly Hare and Hounds runs offer this opportunity for moderate outdoor exercise. We don't want men to come out to race; we want a crowd of good fellows to come out and have a good time. "The pace is easy and the apparel is light."

This week we have a famous combination; Wellesley is the place, and Allen and Starkweather are to be the hares. Come out and have a glorious good time and help make the Seniors' last run the best of the season.

MINING IN MEXICO.

At the meeting of the Mining Engineering Society last night at the Union, Prof. Richards gave an interesting talk on "Mining in Mexico," as observed by a party of which he was one, of members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, which took a trip through Mexico in 1901. Three classes of silver mines were visited; those where silver occurs with lead, those where the metal can be directly extracted, and those where the ore has to be treated by the patio process. The party proceeded to Mexico City where it was received by Pres. Diaz. Prof. Richard, showed several slides illustrating the condition and customs of the natives. At the next meeting of the society will be held the election of officers.

NEW YORK STATE CLUB DINNER.

The annual election of officers of the New York State Club will be held at the club's dinner at the Union this evening. Some prominent members of the faculty will be present. All men from New York State are urged to attend and give the Club fresh stimulus, as interest this year has been lagging.

The intercollegiate swimming meet which was held at Princeton was won by Yale with 21 points. Pennsylvania was second with 18 points and Princeton third with 6 points. Owing to the expense the Harvard entries were cancelled.
