SONG OF THE STEADY STUDENT.

I am here to get a college education,
I am here to get a mastery of books.
I read in intervals of mastication,—
It's rough, they say, but I don't care for looks.

They joke about me—say I'm one be polar,
That the light from my green globe is polarized,
But I grit my teeth—I do abrade each molar—
And keep sopping up the knowledge
I've so prized.

When the time comes 'round to have a class election,
I am lost—don't really know a single man.
But can they tell aught of natural selection, Plato's ideas, Kant's philosophy? I can.

What are football, baseball, hockey,
track athletics?
We're not here, it seems to me, for playing games.
I'm a shark on Latin, ethics, homiletics,
But I couldn't tell you half my classmates names!
—The Princeton Tiger.

SPEAKS ON DENATURED ALCOHOL.

Eminent Authority Addresses Society of
