It is certainly hoped that the class of 1913 will profit wisely by the experience they have just passed through. It is not class rivalry or the fact that the move was made by freshmen; but a far deeper and more serious question—the future of a social organization being threatened, indispensable to the student welfare.

"At Christmas play and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year."
—Thomas Tusser.

Let it be hoped that the few Technology co-eds here at the Institute can find something more in keeping with their sect and profession than standing on street corners in a big city selling papers for an all too sensational cause of "woman's suffrage"—unless it be for a mistaken feminine desire and craving after a sort of depraved publicity and yellow journalism like their sisters across the water.

"Nothing is more harmful to a man young or old, than a disposition to be cynical. There is more good in the world than bad, and the world is growing better, not worse."—Pres. Tuttle at the Union.

Discretion of speech is more than eloquence; and to speak agreeably to him with whom we deal is more than to speak in good words or in good order."
—Francis Bacon.

1913 DINNER

Dr. Talbot then followed. After pithy stories, he said that he wanted to be considered a fellow-student with everyone in the Institute, urging the men to come to him as a helper. He urged the fellows, when deciding upon their career, not to keep the dollars and cents side of the question uppermost, but to choose that calling in which he will be the happiest. The best results will then follow.

Bursar Rand was the last speaker. He spoke on the Union, a subject very dear to him. He said that his remarks were in no way a criticism, but he desired to appeal to the men to reciprocate and stand by and support the Union. He showed by comparison the great need that the Union filled. He urged the class to live up to Tech standards and do credit to its Alma Mater. After a period of songs and cheers the meeting disbanded.

BIG MASS MEETING

Mr. Scharff stated that the freshman Dinner Committee did not in any way consult the management of the Union as to a possible menu. It was only after all plans had been completed for the dinner down town that two or three men came around and asked a few questions as to what could have been done. Mr. Scharff was of the opinion that the committee used very poor taste in the management. It has been found by a partial canvass of the freshmen by two Tech reporters, that the general sentiment among the 1913 men was to have their class dinner at the Union, as in past years.

In closing, Mr. Scharff wished to impress upon the students that the meals served in the Union of late had been entirely satisfactory to all men eating there regularly. The support and maintenance of the Union is with the students, and he urges all to give it a fair try and convince themselves as to its right to demand the students' support. President Goodwin then put the resolutions and they were passed with a unanimous vote.

The resolutions passed and expressing the voice of the three upper classes are as follows:—

"That the three upper classes disapprove strongly of the action taken by the freshman class in giving up the Union as a place for holding their class dinners, in consideration of the fact that the Union was given to the students through the generosity of the friends and alumni of the Institute as a place for such events; and that it is regarded as presumptuous in the extreme that a freshman class should set such a precedent, and be it further

"Resolved, That this action be taken as a precedent for the action of future classes."

Technology will be represented in all the local meets and the relay team will run in the meets held at Madison Square and Troy, New York.

"Boost" rather than "bust" would be a better motto for the communication writers.

Now that it's all over let's forget it.
