COL. ORTON W. ALBEE '93, DIES

States, and had a wide acquaintance there. Consequently he was sent to Canada in charge of all United States munitions plants. The government had $400,000,000 worth of contracts for munitions in Canada, and Major Albee had complete charge of all contracts. At the time of the armistice $300,000,000 worth were still in force, and since these contracts had been placed in a foreign country, Major Albee, later being promoted to lieutenant-colonel, was made personal representative of the Secretary of War, and has been engaged in the adjustment of these unfinished contracts ever since. His work involved tremendous responsibility and he wore himself out until he had to take a rest at the end of June. He came east to Marlboro on sick leave to visit his sisters in the latter part of June. About two weeks ago he underwent a surgical operation, and while he survived about six days, his vitality was so low that he finally succumbed a week ago Monday. His death came while he was still in the service, and he gave his life for his country just as truly as the soldier on the battlefield of France.

Mr. Albee was very active in the Technology Club of Detroit, was a past president of the Detroit Engineering Society, and a member of the Masonic fraternity. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Miss Dorothy, and two sisters, Mrs. Sumner P. Willard and Mrs. Frederick W. Pratt. He comes from an old New England family, his father having served in the Civil War.

He was an intensely loyal man, popular with his associates, and the best type of American. His example was of immense value to his force. He had under his charge fifty officers, a hundred enlisted men, and twenty-six hundred civil force, inspectors, clerks, and stenographers. The responsibility that was his required extraordinary executive ability and tact, and his success was due to the force of his own example.

cient to maintain the regular services at the numbers required by the law, as many men as may be necessary may be selected from among the men completing their training period to serve for an additional period of one year. Those so selected, shall be apportioned among the States by quotas.

The Army, Navy and Marine Corps reserves include men who at any time between the declaration of war and the armistice elect to become members of the plan.

They would be subject to duty for five years, but not after they are thirty years old. Other members of the reserve are men not excepted who may hereafter serve in the Army for training. They remain in the reserve for ten years following the training.

Excepted Reserve Classes

The following classes are excepted from service as enlisted men in the reserve of the Army:

Officers holding regular or reserve commissions in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, and enlisted men: members of the reserve of the Navy and officers and enlisted men of the militia.

Men of any State to the number of 250 for each senator and member of the House from each State, who are in active service as officers or enlisted men in the National Guard.

Men who have served as officers or enlisted men in the National Guard for not less than three years, of whom the first two shall have been in active service.

Men in a status with respect to dependency which makes their exemption desirable.

Men, the nature of whose occupations or residence makes their exemption desirable.

Federal, State, county and municipal officers and employees.

Under the bill maximum peace strength of the regular Army two years after the ratification of the Peace Treaty is fixed at the figure set in the National Defense Act, of about 225,000. It is intended that a somewhat large maximum shall be prescribed for the coming two years.

The President is empowered to call out the National Guard, active militia, and naval militia of the State only to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections or repel invasions, but they shall not be required to serve outside of the United States for more than three months in any one year.

Whenever the President shall declare a national emergency exists the reserves shall be subject to call or immediate military or naval service during the period of the emergency. All other male persons between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, inclusive shall be subject to call for immediate military or naval service as may be provided by regulation.

Heavy Penalty for Evaders

Authorization is given to the President to require a registration of all classes of male citizens, but, except in a national emergency, no person shall be required to register more than once in a calendar year.

Machinery is provided in the bill to determine exemptions. There are suggested also in the bill, a national military administrator and one or more military administrators for each State or Territory, the former to receive a salary of $7500 and each of the latter $6000, except in the case of the appointment of regular or reserve Army or Navy officers, who shall receive the pay of their ranks.

Failure to register shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $10,000, and failure to appear for physical examinations by a fine of not exceeding $1000.

COLLEGE NOTE

HARVARD UNIVERSITY. By a recent vote of the Harvard faculty of arts and sciences it is now possible to secure the degree of Master of Arts by Summer School work only. This makes it unnecessary for a graduate of a college to spend a fifth year at a university in order to get an M. A. degree.
