TENNIS MEN REVEL ON WALKER COURTS

Marked Yesterday Morning—
Rain Not Sufficient to Prevent Use

Yesterday morning, Eddie Pung marked out the tennis courts east of Walker and had them ready for use at eleven o'clock. The courts were used almost steadily during the day, in spite of the rain. Although the rain has not been heavy enough yet to damage the courts, if there is very much more, they will be useless again.

The courts are secured by signing up for them for a definite time, any time up to two weeks in advance, at Eddie Pung's stand in Walker. The rates are ten cents an hour per player. However, there has been enough so that they will probably have to be marked all over again. With the probability of more rain in the near future, prospects are none too good. The courts in back of Walker are in shape for use except that they haven't been lined yet. This matter is in Pung's hands and will be taken care of as soon as possible.

Races Harvard Today

Last Saturday the Harvard junior varsity was beaten by the Union Boat Club eight by a very small margin. The Institute's second varsity, racing them this afternoon over the Henley course, will have to put forth every effort to make a good showing, for their race yesterday found them ragged. They lack the necessary experience together that makes a finished eight, due to the recent shifting to fill the vacant places.

The University of Engineering

Of all the things that go to make the successful engineer, none is more important, nor more in step with the spirit of the profession, than a studious attitude. One man says about another—"he is always willing to learn," "he doesn't think he knows it all"—and he intends to pay a high compliment when he says it.

The great engineers are always at school, always learning, always seeking for more knowledge. They begin with this desire for fuller understanding, and they keep it up to the end.

Any engineering operation, over and above the primary purpose for which it is carried out, is an active and post-graduate class in engineering, also. So that Westinghouse, or any other great business, is, of its very nature, a University where theory and practice combine to make bigger, broader and more practical engineers.

The courses in this University are not limited to prescribed subjects nor terms—the subjects are almost infinite, and the semesters are endless. Men with the weight of years on their shoulders work and learn side-by-side with those whose day has just dawned.

This post-graduate school fits men for almost anything. Fits them for it, and makes them continually fitter. Out of this continuing fitness have grown the engineering accomplishments on which this institution has grown. It is, perhaps, one of the great educational institutions of its day.
