Starting Life Anew!

MANY of us wish that we could start life anew, but that, of course, is impossible.

For you who are leaving college to embark upon a business career there is a new beginning. You have yet your mistakes to make and, because of them, your disappointments to endure. You must begin to think of something more serious than the winning of a baseball game. You must tread a new path where baseball counts so little and where losses in the world's work count so much. It is vital for you to keep abreast of the happenings of that new world, to keep informed of its doings, and, if possible, to keep ahead of it.

In no way can you be better informed than by constant use of that newspaper which prints news and articles of the business, social and political world that are authoritative and timely. Such a paper is the

which has been an institution in the community for nearly 100 years, seeking from its beginning to disseminate a broader knowledge of the more important things of life.

registration figures. If these are to be kept low, then out of fairness to the students, only those fit for the battle should be admitted in the first place.

Don't forget the cold shower every morning and the movie every night during exam week. And feed the slide rule with what's in your hip pocket. You'll be sure of getting the right answer then. Even slide rules return good for evil.

Frosh Need Proctors

As one of the provisions of the recently revised constitution of the Honor System at Rutgers, the freshman class has been excluded from its program. Since the greatest number of offenders against the system are among the first year men, the necessity of their submitting to professional supervision is apparent. An effort will be made to acquaint the frosh with the system before they are actually governed by it, in order to have them appreciate its worth.

VI-A Sophs Shut Out Juniors With Tight Ball in Lynn League
Juniors Show Form Equal to That of Class Team in Interclass Series

A closely fought nine inning game played at Lynn between the Juniors and Sophs at the General Electric Plant indicates that the '24 men in Lynn are now up to the top-line average shown for the season by the Junior team in the interclass series. The Lynn Sophs pinned a 9-7 defeat on the upperclassmen in good tight baseball, the hitting during the game being in bunches where there was any, and fielding being accurate.

The Sophs led with a pair of runs in the first inning and added four more in the third, while the Juniors were held to a single run during the first three frames. In the fourth the Juniors came through with five in a row, tying the score, but were cut down again by bunched hits in the fifth.
